RBS Community Force competition

Our application to enter the RBS Community Force competition has been accepted!

The Royal Bank of Scotland's Community Force competition is one way in which RBS is aiming to support local communities. They will be making 3 awards of £6,000 for each area and the winners will be those who receive the most votes from the general public.

Anyone in Scotland can vote from 26 September so get voting and help us secure this funding for the Phoenix Project and ultimately Lochgilphead.

We hope to use the funding to pay for the new community notice board and to develop proposals to bring the Clock Lodge back into use.

Community Notice Board

Progress is slower than we hoped but work is still ongoing in relation to the Community Notice Board. We have written to local organisations and businesses to see if they would be interesting in displaying information on the boards when complete.

If you know any organisations that could benefit from the community notice board, they should contact us so now that they can be kept up to date on progress.

Presentation to Mid Argyll Partnership

The Phoenix Project made a presentation about our activities to the Mid Argyll Partnership in 16 August 2011; the meeting was chaired by Councillor Alison Hay and included representatives from various organisations across the Mid Argyll area.
